Politics in Ireland The Summer of 1924: 100 years ago

In June in an austerity budget, the Minister for Finance the only Northern Ireland Protestant to serve in a Republic of Ireland cabinet, Ernest Blythe brings in the Old Age Pensions Act 1924, which cuts the old age pension by 10%, from 10/= to 9/= an action which tarred the reputation of his Cumann Na nGael government for many decades. On July 3rd the Minister for Education, Eoin MacNeill announces that the teaching of Irish is to be made compulsory in all schools.
